Located on the first floor and arranged over two levels, the property features a bright living area with kitchenette and a characteristic small balcony. An internal staircase leads to the upper floor, where the sleeping area includes a spacious master bedroom overlooking the courtyard, a bathroom with shower, and a convenient storage room. The apartment is currently rented and will be available from February 2026, making it an appealing opportunity both as an income-producing investment and for those planning a future move to the historic center.
